Grimoire Blessing

I protect this book with divine energy.
May it hold truth, magic, and memory.
May my words be clear, my heart be open,
And my path be guided by wisdom and light.

May wisdom be written, truth be remembered, and power be honored. May it serve a good purpose, harm none.
And walk the path of honor and balance.

May this book be guarded from all that is ill.
By the strength of my will,
let it be a beacon of wisdom and light, shining through the darkness, both day and night.

So mote it be.

Bright blessings!

This Grimoire belongs to:

Blessed be.

The Art of Tarot

A Letter, Before the Cards

Dear member, welcome to the Société, a society for women who read between the lines.
Before the moons and the sabbats, before the crystals and the spreads, there are the cards. This chapter gathers everything you need to begin: how to care for a deck, how it is built, what each of the 78 cards can say, and how to sit with them, alone or in good company.

Where the Cards Come From

Italian by birth, French by reinvention, drawn by a woman's hand.
Tarot was born in fifteenth century Milan as tarocchi, painted cards for a court game of trumps, with no fortunes attached. The mystical reading arrived in France in the 1780s, when Antoine Court de Gébelin invented an Egyptian origin for the cards.

Tarot has always travelled through circles.
In 1888 the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn admitted women as equals. One of its members, Pamela Colman Smith, painted the deck most of us learn with in 1909, and for most of a century it was sold under two men's names. That is the lineage we carry.

A Practice of Looking

You do not need to believe in anything to use these pages.
Here, tarot is a practice of looking and reflection, not prophecy. The cards will not tell your fortune, but they are a beautiful way to begin a conversation, with yourself or with someone you trust. Keep this chapter beside your cards, return to it often, and then, slowly, let it go.

Find us, and you will be found.

Before You Begin...

Getting to Know Your Deck

A deck becomes yours through use, not ceremony.
Give it a name and treat it as a trusted guide. Keep it under your pillow for three nights. Shuffle it while you watch a film, carry it in your bag, leave it on your desk. Say hello before a reading, or ask it a simple question just to hear how it answers. Pull one card each morning and write a single honest line about it.

Make a Ritual

Repetition is what makes it sacred.
Light a candle, pour a tea, or say a short phrase before you draw. Keep a stone you love beside the cards; the Crystals page at the end of this book has a few ideas.

Resetting Your Deck

When a deck feels heavy, after a difficult reading or a long season, give it a pause.
Reorder the cards from the Fool to the King of Pentacles. Knock on the deck three times to mark a fresh start. Rest it on a windowsill overnight, in moonlight. Or simply hold it for a quiet minute before you shuffle again. Choose whichever feels respectful to you, or none at all.

How to Ask the Tarot

Open questions open the cards.
Ask what you can understand, change or do, rather than what will happen to you.

Not like this	Like this
Will I do well this year?	What should I focus on to make this year fulfilling?
Will my ex come back?	What do I need to understand to heal and move forward?
Will I get the job?	What can I nurture to welcome the right opportunity?

One Gentle Rule

Depth comes before variety.
In the beginning, stay with one deck and one system. And if you arrive with doubt, or with a faith of your own, you are welcome exactly as you are: you can simply look at the cards as paintings, slowly, and notice what they bring to mind.

Anatomy of the Deck

Two Families, 78 Cards

The Major Arcana are 22 cards, from the Fool to the World.
They speak of turning points and life lessons; when several appear in one reading, something significant is moving. The Minor Arcana are 56 cards in four suits, each running from Ace to Ten and crowned by a Page, Knight, Queen and King. They speak of everyday life: the situations, thoughts and feelings of an ordinary week.

Every Suit Has a Theme

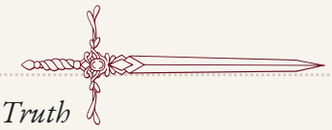
Wands

Fire · Passion · Action
Also called rods or staves. Creativity, ambition and inspiration. Season: spring. Signs: Aries, Leo, Sagittarius. Timing: days, the fastest suit. Yes or no: yes, with effort.

Cups

Water · Emotion · Heart
Also called chalices or goblets. Love, intuition and relationships. Season: summer. Signs: Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces. Timing: months, a slow suit. Yes or no: yes, it will flow to you.

Swords



Air · Thought · Truth
Also called blades. Ideas, communication, conflict and decisions. Season: autumn. Signs: Gemini, Libra, Aquarius. Timing: weeks, a fast suit. Yes or no: no, not aligned right now.

Pentacles

Earth · Material · Stability
Also called coins or discs. Work, money, the body and home. Season: winter. Signs: Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn. Timing: years, the slowest suit. Yes or no: yes, at a cost.

Cups feel, wands act, swords think, pentacles build.
Timings and yes or no answers are old reader conventions, playful rather than promised. A Major Arcana card drawn for a yes or no question means the answer is larger than the question.

The Court

Sixteen cards: a person in your life, a role you are playing, or an energy the moment asks of you.
Pages are students and messengers: curiosity, news, a first attempt. Knights are seekers in motion: pursuit, momentum, sometimes haste. Queens hold mastery within: intuition, care, quiet authority. Kings turn mastery outward: leadership, decision, responsibility.

The Language of Numbers

You do not need to memorize 56 meanings.
Learn the four suits and these ten numbers, and every minor card begins to read itself. The number tells you what is happening; the suit tells you where. The Five of Cups is simply disruption (five) in the realm of feeling (cups).

The Pyramid of Numbers

ACE
The seed
New beginnings, potential, opportunity

TWO
Duality
Balance, partnership, choice

THREE
First results
Growth, teamwork, community

FOUR
Structure
Stability, foundations, rest

FIVE
Disruption
Change, obstacles, disagreement

SIX
Recovery
Harmony, peace, generosity

SEVEN
The test
Reflection, strategy, challenge

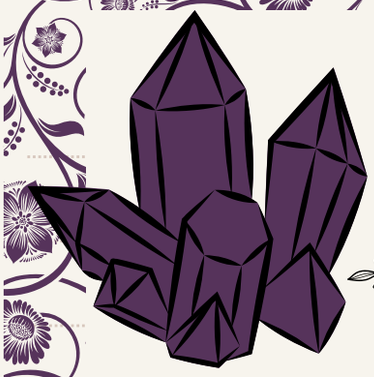
EIGHT
Momentum
Movement, skill, mastery

NINE
Almost there
Tenacity, fulfillment, attainment

TEN
Completion
The end of a cycle, renewal

Aces and Tens bookend every suit.
One opens the door, the other closes it; the numbers between are the walk from one to the other.

Crystals

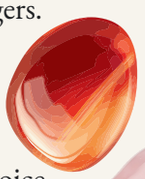


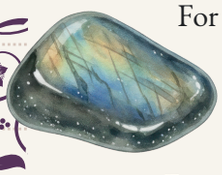
Before Every Reading

Selenite, Clear Quartz, Black Tourmaline.
To cleanse the deck, amplify your connection, and absorb what lingers.

Intuition & Insight

Amethyst, Labradorite, Moonstone.
For deep readings; they open the third eye and heighten your inner voice.





Love & Relationships

Rose Quartz, Rhodonite, Garnet.
For matters of the heart; they invite compassion, romance, and connection.

Career & Abundance

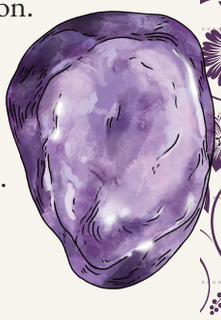
Citrine, Pyrite, Green Aventurine.
For work and money; they draw opportunity, confidence, and prosperity.

Shadow Work & Protection

Smoky Quartz, Hematite, Nuummite.
For hard questions; they ground you and keep heavy energy from clinging.

Truth & Clarity

Dumortierite, Sodalite, Blue Lace Agate.
For decisions and yes or no questions; they cut through every illusion.



Spirit & Ancestors

Angelite, Apophyllite, Selenite.
For messages from guides, angels, and loved ones beyond the veil.

Healing & Self Care

Lepidolite, Blue Calcite, Amazonite.
For tender seasons; they calm the mind, soothe the heart, and restore peace.

The Major Arcana

Twenty two cards, one journey.
The Major Arcana follow the Fool from innocence to wholeness, each card a lesson on the road. This deck keeps the older Italian and French order, so Justice is VIII and Strength is XI. Look closely as you read: a white cat waits at the Fool's feet, and the Magician is a woman.

The Fool

0 · The Fool

A leap of faith, innocence, a fresh path.
Reversed: recklessness, or fear of beginning at all. Timing: unexpectedly.

The Magician

I · The Magician

Will and skill; you already hold every tool you need.
Reversed: talent unused, or a trickster at work. Timing: quickly.

The High Priestess

II · The High Priestess

Intuition, mystery, the knowledge beneath the surface.
Reversed: ignoring your inner voice. Timing: a secret, still unknown.

The Empress

III · The Empress

Abundance, creativity, nurture, sensual pleasure.
Reversed: giving until empty, creative block. Timing: when the pieces align.

The Emperor

IV · The Emperor

Structure, authority, a steady hand.
Reversed: control turned rigid, or none at all. Timing: Aries, March 21 to April 20.

The Hierophant

V · The Hierophant

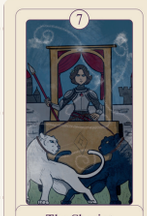
Tradition, teachers, shared belief.
Reversed: questioning the rules, finding your own way. Timing: Taurus, April 21 to May 21.

The Lovers

VI · The Lovers

Union, alignment of values, a meaningful choice.
Reversed: disharmony, a choice made against yourself. Timing: Gemini, May 22 to June 21.

The Major Arcana

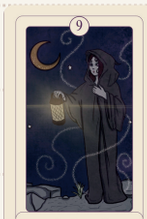


VII · The Chariot

Willpower, direction, victory through focus.
Reversed: scattered energy, forcing what should be steered. Timing: Cancer, June 22 to July 22.

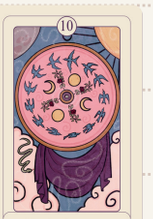
VIII · Justice

Truth, fairness, cause and effect.
Reversed: avoiding accountability, an outcome that feels unfair. Timing: Libra, September 23 to October 23.



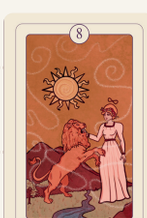
IX · The Hermit

Solitude, introspection, the lamp you carry within.
Reversed: isolation that no longer serves you. Timing: Virgo, August 24 to September 22.



X · Wheel of Fortune

Cycles, fate, a turning point.
Reversed: resisting change, a stretch of bad luck that will pass. Timing: a surprise.



XI · Strength

Courage with a gentle hand; instinct mastered through compassion.
Reversed: doubting yourself, inner strength forgotten. Timing: Leo, July 23 to August 23.

XII · The Hanged Man

Surrender, pause, seeing from a new angle.
Reversed: stalling, sacrifice without purpose. Timing: patience, delays, waiting.

XIII · Death

Transformation, endings that make room, rebirth.
Reversed: clinging to what is already over. Timing: Scorpio, October 24 to November 22.

XIV · Temperance

Balance, patience, the art of mixing opposites.
Reversed: excess, moving too fast. Timing: Sagittarius, November 23 to December 21.

The Major Arcana

The Devil

XV · The Devil

Attachment, temptation, the chains we choose.
Reversed: breaking free, reclaiming your power. Timing: Capricorn, December 22 to January 20.

The Tower

XVI · The Tower

Sudden upheaval, revelation, false structures falling.
Reversed: avoiding a necessary collapse. Timing: abruptly.

The Star

XVII · The Star

Hope, healing, renewed faith after the storm.
Reversed: discouragement, forgetting the light is still there. Timing: Aquarius, January 21 to February 18.

The Moon

XVIII · The Moon

Illusion, dreams, what is not yet revealed.
Reversed: confusion lifting, fears seen for what they are. Timing: Pisces, February 19 to March 20.

The Sun

XIX · The Sun

Joy, vitality, success, clarity.
Reversed: joy dimmed or delayed, but never gone. Timing: daytime, summer.

Judgement

XX · Judgement

Awakening, a calling, honest reckoning.
Reversed: doubting yourself, ignoring the call. Timing: quick, slow, or permanent.

The World

XXI · The World

Completion, wholeness, a chapter fulfilled.
Reversed: loose ends, almost but not yet. Timing: slow but successful.

The World returns you to the Fool.
Every ending in the Major Arcana is also a beginning. When the journey completes, it starts again, with a lighter step and a wiser eye.

The Suit of Wands

Fire · Passion · Action
Creativity, ambition and inspiration. Upright meaning first, reversal after the slash; when a card feels unclear, return to its number and its suit.

The Numbered Cards

How to Read

Tarot is a mirror of patterns, not a fixed prediction.
You do not need to believe the cards foresee anything; their value lives in the looking, and in the conversation they open.

Six Steps for Any Reading

1 · Ground yourself. One deep breath is enough.

2 · Ask a clear question. Open questions work best: “What do I need to understand about this job?” gives you more than “Will I get it?”

3 · Shuffle and draw, however feels natural; there is no wrong way.

4 · Look before you read. Notice the imagery first: a color, a gesture, a detail that catches your eye.

5 · Combine meaning and intuition. Let the guide give you a starting point, then trust what you noticed.

6 · Reflect. Write one honest line about what shifted.

A Looking Prompt, for Anyone

What do you notice first? What does it remind you of in your life right now?
If you are new, wary or simply curious, begin here, before any meaning. Draw one card and ask only these two questions. No knowledge required.

Upright and Reversed

A reversed card is not a bad omen.
An upright card speaks its meaning freely. Reversed, that energy is blocked, delayed, turned inward or asking for attention. Many readers skip reversals while they learn; both ways are valid, so choose one and stay consistent.

Patterns Across the Spread

Read the whole table before any single card.
Many Major Arcana: a significant chapter, larger forces at play. Many of one suit: the reading lives in that realm. Many court cards: other people are central, or you wear several roles. Repeated numbers: that number is the theme.

The Card and Its Neighbors

No card speaks alone.
A bright card beside gentle ones suggests hope after a challenge. A heavy card among light ones softens; a light card among heavy ones shows the way through. Read each card in the company it keeps.

Reading the Figures

The cards are full of people, and people have body language.
Before any meaning, notice how the figures stand, where they look and what they hold. The painting often answers before the book does.

Where the Figures Look

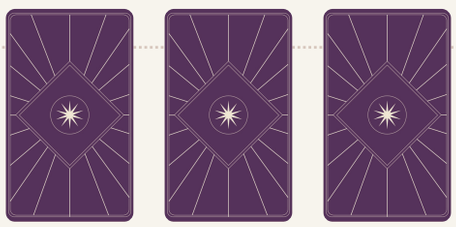
Facing left, toward the past · something behind you still has a hold. Let it go, or notice what keeps returning.
Looking straight ahead, in the present · the spotlight is on you; what happens next is yours to shape.
Facing right, toward the future · momentum, a door opening, a reason to move forward.

Body Language

Looking down · introspection, sadness, or a search within.
Crossed arms · protection, resistance, a closed heart.
Open posture · receptivity, honesty, welcome.
Defensive stance · guarding something, ready for conflict.
Raised hand · blessing, intention, or a call to stop.
Holding a cup close · cherishing a feeling, or refusing to share it.
Walking away · leaving something behind, a chosen ending.
Facing each other · connection, dialogue, a mirror.
Upside down · a new perspective, or a world turned over.
Clutching · fear of loss, holding on too tight.
Kneeling · humility, devotion, or exhaustion.
Moving forward · progress, courage, the next step.

Things We Wish We Had Known Sooner

· You do not need to memorize every keyword before your first reading; meaning arrives through practice.
· Your intuition matters as much as any book, this one included.
· It is often easier to read for a stranger than for a friend, or for yourself.
· The more you read for others, the better you become.
· You will go through seasons of wanting the cards every day and seasons of not touching them. Both are fine.
· You do not need to be gifted a deck; choosing your own is its own small rite.
· You do not need expensive courses. A deck, a notebook and curiosity are enough.

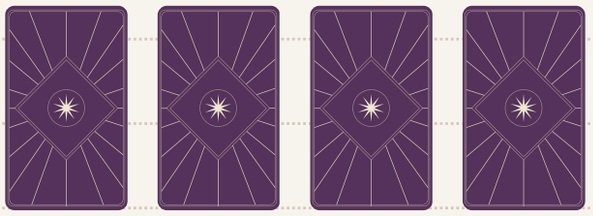


Spreads to Begin

Start small; a single card read well teaches more than ten read in a hurry.
Lay the cards from left to right unless a spread says otherwise. You will find a spread for every sabbat and every moon phase later in this grimoire.

One Card, a Quick Insight

Draw one card each morning.
Let it set the tone for your day, and return to it at night.

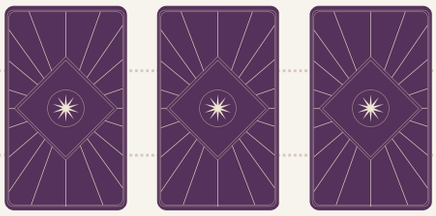


For Two, the Société Way

Sit across from someone you trust.
Each of you draws one card for the other and reads it aloud with the looking prompt: what do you notice first, and what does it remind you of in their life right now? Then trade places.

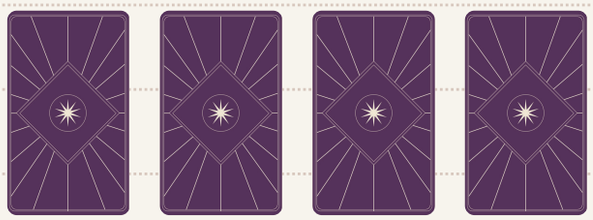
Shadow Work

Four cards, read gently.
1. The trigger. 2. The pattern beneath it. 3. A healing action. 4. Integration.



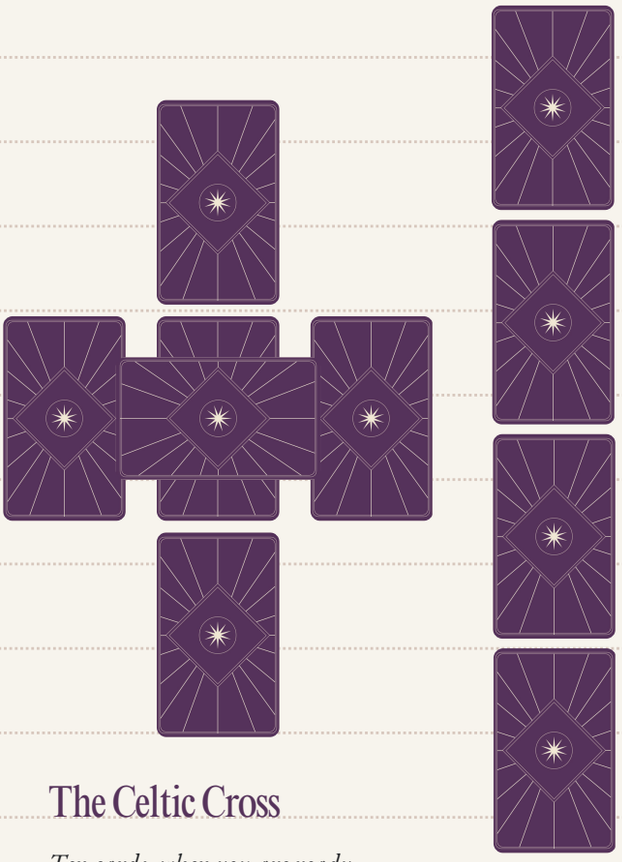
Three Cards, the Classic

Past, present, future.
Or, for a question: 1. Situation. 2. Tension. 3. Next step. For a daily reflection: today's energy, where to focus, what to release.



A Decision

Four cards for a crossroads.
1. The current situation. 2. The path of option A. 3. The path of option B. 4. The best next step.



The Celtic Cross

Ten cards, when you are ready.
1. The present. 2. The challenge, laid across it. 3. The foundation. 4. The recent past. 5. Your conscious focus. 6. The near future. Then a column of four to the right, read from bottom to top: 7. Your approach. 8. Outside influences. 9. Hopes and fears. 10. The possible outcome.

Phases of the Moon

Dark Moon

Banishing, baneful magic, shadow work, divination.

Very powerful to dispel of unwanted energy, entities, people or situations, as well as using any kind of baneful or destructive work. Corresponds with mystery & the unknown.

Waxing Crescent

Prosperity, growth, attraction, endeavors.

This is the time for constructive workings such as self-improvement, job workings, relationship building, creativity and good habits.

First Quarter Half Moon

Prosperity, protection, relationships, attraction.

Use this phase to draw outside things into you. Good for finding lost items, finding a new home or job, and expanding social circles.

Waxing Gibbous

Prosperity, growth, attraction, finality.

To give a small boost to any endeavor or work, anything that has been worked for but needs a push.

Full Moon

All major workings.

The full moons are most powerful of all the phases. This is not used for minor workings, as the outcome can be much larger than intended.

Waning Gibbous

Minor banishing, cleansing, protection, warding.

This is a good time to cleanse a space, tools, do upkeep around the house, or set up wards and spiritual repellants. Divination for reflection and clarity.

Third Quarter Half Moon

Finishing projects, transitions, block busters.

Use this phase to get the last push needed to finish any endeavors, deal with temptation, and help with change or transitions.

Waning Crescent

Banishing, finishing projects, letting go.

This is used for minor things that need banishment, cleansing, or release, unlike serious things for the dark moon. Letting go of stale or bad relationships, projects & jobs.

The Esbats

What Is an Esbat

A gathering beneath the moon.
Sabbats follow the sun; esbats follow the moon. Usually kept at the full moon, an esbat is a quiet ritual to give thanks, set intentions, and read.

Prepare Your Space

Cleanse first, then begin.
Open a window, light a white candle, and pass your deck through rosemary smoke. Lay a cloth, and choose your stones from the Crystals page.

Moon Water

A jar beneath the full moon.
Speak an intention over fresh water and leave it on the sill overnight. Use it to cleanse your space.

Charging

Let them rest in silver light.
Leave your deck and crystals on the sill overnight; gather them before the sun is high.

Full Moon

Release, then give thanks.
Write what you are ready to release and fold it away. Pull one card for the cycle ahead.

New Moon

Plant a quiet seed.
Write one intention as if it were already true, and pull one card for the first step.

In Circle

The Société way.
Esbats were never meant to be kept alone. Invite your friends, share a meal, and read for one another with the looking prompt from How to Read.

Keep a Record

Return to the page.
Note each esbat in the journal pages at the back of this grimoire. Over a year, the moon will show you your own rhythm.

Questions for the Cards

Write one question at the top of a page, draw a single card, and let the pen wander. A page a week is plenty; return to these whenever you feel stuck.

Knowing Yourself

What talents am I not using?
What is my greatest strength?
What am I ready to outgrow?
Where am I performing instead of feeling?

Love and Connection

What am I calling into my life?
What does my heart need to hear?
Which bond asks for more honesty?
How can I love myself better this week?

Purpose and Ambition

What do I really want?
What is my next brave step?
What is quietly holding me back?
Where should my energy go this month?

Spirit and Intuition

What do my guides want me to know?
How does my intuition speak to me?
Which sign have I been ignoring?
What am I ready to release?

Getting to Know Your Deck

Which card do I love most, and why?
Which card unsettles me, and why?
Which card feels like me right now?
If my deck were a woman, who is she?

For Two, the Société Way

What does she need to hear today?
What do we share in this season?
What can I offer her right now?
What shall we celebrate together?

Date every page. Months from now, the cards will show you how far you have come.

The Suit Tally

Major Arcana	Wands	Cups	Swords	Pentacles

A month heavy in one suit tells you where your energy has been living.

Cards that kept appearing

What this month taught me

What I am grateful for

What I am ready to release

My intention for the next moon

The Month in Cards

Close each month with your deck. Tally the suits, notice who kept visiting, and set your intention for the next moon.
